

International Space Development Conference Sheraton National Hotel Arlington

Washington, DC
May 19-22, 2005

Celebrating NSS's 30th Anniversary

The National Space Society is America's most vocal grassroots advocate for space exploration and development. With roughly 20,000 member-subscribers, the organization has a proven record in promoting space with the general public, and communicating that support to top decisionmakers in government and industry.

2005 marks the 30th anniversary of the founding of the society. In this year, NSS is pleased to bring its annual conference to Washington, DC, for what promises to be a milestone event bringing the latest developments in space to the general public, Congress and national leaders.

The conference, entitled the International Space Development Conference, will be held May 19-22 at the Sheraton National Hotel in Arlington, Virginia.

Anniversary Gala at the Udvar Hazy Center, National Air and Space Museum

The highlight of the conference will be the Anniversary Gala Dinner on the evening of Saturday, May 21, chaired by television host and author Hugh Downs and celebrating the diamond anniversary of the society. For this special occasion, the society has reserved the spectacular new National Air and Space Museum Udvar Hazy Center. The dinner will feature many prominent members of the society's Board of Governors, chaired by Mr. Downs, as well as presentation of the society's highest awards. A special VIP reception will welcome the evening's honorees as well as the society's Board of Governors.

Conference Sponsorship

Current major sponsors of ISDC include NASA, Transformational Space Corporation, The Boeing Company, NASA Research Partnership Centers, and Space Age Publishing. We invite you to join these visionary organizations in demonstrating support and exposure for space exploration and its benefits in our nation's capital.

With coverage from national and local news media, including guaranteed advertisements in Space News, plus attendance of senior leaders from Congress and their staff, the event is an opportunity for significant exposure.

Certain sponsorship levels include tables at the Anniversary Gala, chaired by Hugh Downs and held at the National Air and Space Museum Udvar Hazy Center.
